CIB Co-Sponsored Conference Announcement

Global Leadership Forum for Construction Engineering and Management Conference

5th – 6th June 2019, Huddersfield, UK

This is the announcement for the CIB Co-Sponsored Global Leadership Forum for Construction Engineering and Management Conference that will be held on the 5-6 of June, 2019 at the University of Huddersfield, UK.

The Global Leadership Forum for Construction Engineering and Management Programs (GLF-CEM) was established in 2011 with the explicit purpose of bringing together professors and senior academics from leading universities around the world who play a leadership and/or administrator role in their respective programs/universities. The forum recognised the gap that existed in addressing issues that cut across educational programs, research and collaboration with industry as well as issues of succession planning and talent development.

Therefore, the objective of GLF-CEM is to establish a body of academic leadership in the area of Construction Engineering and Management to discuss and share issues of common concern in Research, Teaching, Academic Administration, and Opportunities for Collaboration.

Since 2011, eight successful meetings have been held around the globe including Purdue University (Lafayette, USA), Hong Kong Polytechnic University, University of Alberta (Banff, Canada), Bauhaus University (Weimar, Germany), Tsinghua University (Beijing, China), University of Southern California (USA) and Stellenbosch University (South Africa). In recognition of the importance of leadership, the next event hosted by the University of Huddersfield, UK, in 2019 will focus on various aspects of leadership, including, but not limited to, collaborations between industry and academia, collaborative program developments across the globe, trends and benchmarking initiatives, research collaboration and collaborative working at the interface of research, innovation and development, new talent development in industry and academia (Future leaders). As such, the forum is encouraging both senior leaders from industry and academia to attend as well as developing academics that can benefit from being exposed to a truly unique network that includes current decision makers.

Information

More information about this conference and how to register is to be found on the conference website, here.

CIB Registered Members receive a discount of 10% on the registration fee.

Contact

Please direct all enquiries to Hannah Stephens
Email: h.a.stephens@hud.ac.uk